

Riccardo Lo Faro

Journalist, Biographer, Author & Founder of FARO

For more than three decades, Riccardo Lo Faro has dedicated his professional life to listening to, documenting, and preserving real stories.

Based in New York and working internationally, he has built a career at the intersection of journalism, biography, publishing, and documentary storytelling. Throughout the years, he has collaborated with individuals, families, entrepreneurs, artists, executives, public figures, institutions, and organizations across the United States, Europe, and beyond.

His work is guided by a simple conviction: every life contains experiences, values, lessons, and memories that deserve to be preserved and shared.

Riccardo is the author of more than sixty published books spanning biographies, memoirs, family histories, and editorial projects. His subjects have included Academy Award winners, internationally acclaimed artists, business leaders, innovators, public servants, and private individuals whose personal journeys offered stories of lasting significance.

Among the personalities featured in his work are Academy Award-winning production designer Dante Ferretti, renowned conductor Sir Antonio Pappano, Academy Award-winning composer Giorgio Moroder, actor and filmmaker Sylvester Stallone, former New York State First Lady Matilda Raffa Cuomo, inventor and entrepreneur Federico Faggin, legendary NYPD detective Frank Serpico, and former Paramount Pictures and MGM executive Frank Mancuso.

As a biographer and author, Riccardo has worked extensively with private clients seeking to preserve personal histories, family legacies, entrepreneurial journeys, and company narratives. His approach combines in-depth interviews, careful research, journalistic rigor, and a profound respect for the authenticity of every story.

A member of the United States Department of State Press Center, the Los Angeles Press Club, and the Italian Association of Journalists, he has also collaborated with cultural institutions, governmental organizations, educational bodies, and international associations in both Europe and the United States.

His work has been recognized through several honors, including the ANPS International Award from the Italian State Police, presented at the United Nations Headquarters in New York for contributions to the field of information and communication.

In 2011, together with Alessia Pertosa, Riccardo co-founded the PrimiDieci Society and the PrimiDieci Awards, initiatives created to recognize distinguished individuals and foster meaningful international dialogue. That experience has since evolved into The Honors, an international platform celebrating achievement, leadership, culture, and human values while supporting outstanding young talents through recognition, mentorship, and educational opportunities.

Today, through FARO, Riccardo brings together decades of experience in journalism, biography, publishing, and documentary storytelling to help individuals, families, and organizations preserve their histories through books, biographical films, and legacy projects designed to endure across generations.

Because every life leaves a legacy. Some stories deserve to be preserved forever.
